From the Principal

Term 4 Week 11

The expression on everyone's lips and in everyone's thoughts at present is "it has been a year! Yes, it has been a year with the world as we know it operating very differently than we are used to and what we perceived as normal. But look how resilient we all have been.

Resilience is very different than being numb. Resilience means you experience, you feel, you fail, you hurt. You fall but you keep going." And keep going we have done.

Our school started the year in full normal mode with plans and goals to strive for and achieve in 2021. We managed NAPLAN, the Year 6 Canberra excursion, some Rumbalara Environmental Education Centre excursions, the swimming and athletics carnival, the cross country and solid in class daily learning following the curriculum for each of our learning stages. And achieve some wonderful accomplishments we did. Our excellent rating in the Preschool being the ultimate. To think our school's Preschool, Guliyali Preschool has been rated excellent, just one of 37 of 10,000 Early Learning Centres across the whole of Australia. Imagine that! We are so proud to offer the very best start in our Preschool for children in the year before starting school in Kindergarten. An amazing achievement and a tribute to our school, it's staff and it's community.

Term 3 of 2021 is one we will all remember for the rest of our lives. Lock down, working from home for parents and carers and learning from home for children and teachers. But like this quote says

"The human capacity for burden is like bamboo – far more flexible than you'd ever believe at first glance." And flexible we all were.

Resilience, capacity to make the most of a difficult situation and the warm and extensive support for each other saw us through. Parents and carers did their best and surprised themselves stepping up and being teachers while multi-tasking with work and other responsibilities. Teachers became experts in media platforms and children continued to learn in a mode they are all familiar with in this technological world.

In the light of all that happened this year other awards and recognitions pale into insignificance to what everyone has had to endure. But look what you have all achieved. You are all the champions of 2021. Parents, carers, teachers and most importantly you the children attending Woy Woy Public School. You did it, you showed you could aspire to move above what was happening around you and continue your educational journey.

When school returned in Term 4 we were able to pack in as much learning as we could, include many fun activities following the COVID restrictions for level 3 schools and have our students feeling more secure and happy after settling back into school routines with caring teachers to support them. Further in this newsletter you will read some of the wonderful activities that have happened just recently. Happy children all round.

Mr Betts and I thank the parents, carers, teachers and you the children. You all are the true heroes of 2021.

Thank you to our P&C for continuing to support the school throughout 2021 and also being adaptable to link up on zoom meetings so important information could be shared and for keeping our uniform shop up and running. Much appreciated.

Thank you to our school student leaders for 2021. A job well done and what fine ambassadors for our school.

Year 6, so sad to see you go. Some of you have already had 8 years here at our school. We have watched you grow and mature into the young people you are today. Our best wishes go with you to high school. We know you will do us proud.

Congratulations and well done to all our award recipients at our Presentation Day on Tuesday 14th December!

It is fitting at the end of such a year to say Congratulations to everyone. For everyone has played a part in this challenging year and your positivity has been a shining light.

We look forward to 2022 with hopes and renewed dreams. Have a well-deserved summer break and wont it be great to be able to move around freely and have some fun times together with our families. Enjoy and remember, you are the champions of 2021! Thank you everyone.

Ona Buckley and Dan Betts

Positive Behaviour for Learning (PBL) Weeks 10 & 11

Wellbeing Wrap Up

What a year it has been. With the support from our school community and families our students remained positive and have adapted to all the changes. What a wonderful end to the school year the students at Woy Woy Public School have had.

To embed a safe and inclusive learning culture and environment Woy Woy Public School takes a whole school approach to wellbeing. This year 122 students were referred to our Learning Support Team and 46% of those students accessed programs to support their social and emotional needs. The wellbeing needs of our staff and students remains a priority at Woy Woy Public School and we offer many programs designed to enhance positive relationships, promote mental health, and build resilience.

Top Blokes is a preventative, evidence-based group mentoring program delivered by qualified and experienced youth workers and has been developed to engage and expand the critical-thinking and decision-making skills of boys in Stage 3.

Sparkle Girls is a personal development mentoring program for girls and designed to develop an understanding of personal worth, strength and purpose and to help girls realize their full potential. It is delivered by our Social Worker in Schools (SWIS) under the guidance of the Learning Support Team and is available to Stage 2 & 3 girls.

The Worry Woos program is targeted at stage one students and seeks to help children understand and manage their anxieties, anger, jealousy, self-image, rejection, bullying and social relationships. It is delivered by our Learning Support teachers and SWIS.

The Fun FRIENDS curriculum helps build the social and emotional skills of young children by using fun, play-based group activities. The program is delivered by classroom teachers in our K-2 classrooms. By learning resilience skills early in their development, children build confidence to facilitate a smooth transition into school life. Fun FRIENDS nurtures positive relationships with family and peers, encouraging children to thrive.

Next year as a school we will continue to prioritise student wellbeing and look forward to creating more teaching and learning environments that enable students to be healthy, happy, engaged and successful.

Have a wonderful holiday period and take some time to reflect on the successes of the year, take some time for yourself away from screens, explore the outdoors, play, rest, and have fun with your families.

Social Media handy tips for families

Although social media certainly has many benefits, it is natural to be concerned that your child may run into trouble or have a negative experience online. With most Australian children accessing social networks, it helps to understand the facts about these sites and applications and know-how to keep your child safe. Below is a visual and some tips that may assist you in understanding the age requirements for popular apps that can be accessed on phones, tablets, and computers.

Tip 1. Understand the applications and social media sites your child is using

You might already have an idea of the social networks and applications your child is using, but if you don't, a quick search online or scroll through the Apple App Store or Android's Google Play will give you an indication of popular social networks. Most people would be familiar with Facebook and Twitter, but there are also apps such as Instagram and Snapchat where users can share photos and engage in quick-fire conversations. If you're not a social media user yourself, you can also do some reading to gauge which social networks are appropriate to your child's age and what type of functionality is available. Also bear in mind that some websites and mobile applications that aren't necessarily social networks will often have social aspects, such as a user chatroom or the ability to create an online profile.

Tip 2. Set rules for your child's social media use

Banning your child from using social media is rarely effective, as they are likely to have access to a personal computer, tablet, smartphone or gaming console, as well as the devices they use at friends' houses. It can also be very difficult to control their use of these devices or keep up to date with new social media sites or mobile applications. Your best bet is reaching an agreement with your child about their social media use — you might pre-approve the sites they can join, encourage open conversation about their use or things they see online, or agree that they hand over their phone to you overnight.

3. Teach your child about sharing information responsibly

It's important that your child understands how to share information responsibly. They should refrain from publishing personal information, such as their date of birth, home address, phone number or the school they attend. Social media sites often prompt users to fill in these personal details, and many don't realise that their profiles may be viewed by others. Most social media sites give users the opportunity to adjust their privacy settings, usually allowing parts of their profile (or even their full profile) to remain hidden from users who are not a connection. And while it's likely that you taught your child about 'stranger danger' when they were younger, it's important to reinforce this message in their preteens. Your child should know that although they might 'meet' people online, they should never divulge personal information or arrange a meeting with a new online friend without supervision.

4. Ensure your child understands the implications of their online behaviours

Your child may not be aware of the implications of what they do or say online. A general rule of thumb is that if they wouldn't say something in front of you, their teachers or to a friend's face, it's best not to say it online. Your child should also understand that content they post can be saved, shared by friends, or viewed by social media users outside of their network. This applies to status updates, comments, and photos — even if they are quickly deleted. There are also some social networks that allow users to post anonymous messages or ask questions they would like another user to answer.

5. Help your child to deal with cyberbullying

Cyberbullying can include text messages, emails, messages, and comments on social networks, as well as purposely excluding others online. If your child is a victim of cyberbullying, they should talk to someone they trust about what they have experienced, whether this is you, an older sibling, their teacher, or the school counsellor. It is also important to record evidence of cyberbullying — by printing or saving an email, keeping mobile phone conversations or 'screen capturing' an online post. If cyberbullying occurs on social media, your child will usually be able to report the incident to the social network provider and block the bully from contacting them.

Further information

You can find further information about social media safety on the following websites. Your child's school may also provide information for parents, and some may run seminars to raise parents' awareness of young people's social media use.

Special delivery from Santa

During Week 10 the Kindergarten students had a very special delivery.... all the way from the North Pole! Students were amazed to find three blocks of solid ice outside their classrooms which contained letters from Santa! The students were all very excited and happy that Santa had taken the time to respond to the letters they had all written to him a week earlier.... what an amazing experience! Merry Christmas everyone!

Matthew Wolski
Classroom Teacher (KW)

This week we were able to spread some Christmas cheer to our beautiful friends at Deepwater Court Retirement Village. The children had been busy preparing a special hand painted book mark as a gift the week prior as well as practising some Christmas songs to sing for them. The residents of the village were so pleased to see us especially after an interrupted year with the lock down and restrictions. We look forward to continuing to build strong connections with members of our local community next year.

The Guliyali Preschoolers have also completed their kindy transition and my goodness have they proven that they are well and truly ready for 'Big School.' It's a bitter sweet time for us educators as we prepare ourselves in farewelling them from the preschool setting, however the excitement on their faces and seeing them so settled and confident in their new learning spaces, makes us feel so much better. We look forward to celebrating their final year at Guliyali Preschool in week 11.

Picnic in the Park

On Thursday the 9th of December Kitchen/Garden hosted a Picnic in the Park for Stages 2 and 3. Due to the weather we needed to alter our plans, instead we had a drive by pick up of all burgers and desserts. Even though this is not the community event we wished to hold it was still a lot of fun and successful. During the day we had 65 eager and willing volunteers that made the desserts and prepped for the evening. A huge shout out to all our wonderful helpers and we hope that everyone enjoyed their meals.
